CHAHAR BAGH

DINNERWARE

Dinnerware at Chahar Bagh celebrates the splendour of gathering. Here, the table becomes a place of beauty and communion, bringing together craftsmanship and ceremony. Our designs draw from hospitality traditions of royal courts, as well as the rich cultural exchanges that once animated the Silk Route, where food, art, and culture travelled together.

From hand-decorated dinnerware in fine porcelain to luminous glass and silver service, each piece reflects a heritage of refinement and generosity, reimagined for the modern table.

Fine porcelain and human artistry meet in every piece of Chahar Bagh dinnerware. Designed by our in-house team under the creative direction of Anita Lal, each collection begins as hand-painted artwork, later translated with precision by skilled women artisans at our Ballabgarh atelier. Every detail, from the delicate decal application to the final hand-painted rims in 24-carat gold and 950 platinum, reflects mastery and intent.

Pure platinum, resistant to time and tarnish. Its silver luminosity echoes the refinement once celebrated in royal courts across the world.

Eskander brings that same sense of opulence and ceremony to the modern table with exotic pineapples and pomegranates, once prized as emblems of wealth.

The magnificence of Mughal florals captured in exquisite Pietra dura at the Taj Mahal, the iconic poppy butahs printed on Imperial tents, painted frescoes of cypresses and blossoming vines inside monuments at Agra are the inspiration for this unique dinner service.

The Taj Mahal is placed inside a Chahar Bagh and our signature collection with its fluted borders hand-painted in 24 carat gold, reflects the beauty of these paradise gardens.

'Pomegranates and Roses' is a delightful Persian cookbook that inspired the eponymous dinner collection. Featuring ruby red pomegranates and deep pink roses, two fragrant edibles that elevate cuisines across Asia and the Mediterranean.

Illustrated by British artist Rebecca Campbell for our design collection Bosphorus, the motifs represent a confluence of cultures.

KANSA

Kansa utensils steeped in the Ayurvedic tradition, are hand beaten by village artisans who carry skills of this heritage craft passed down through millennia. The gleam and leher (sound) of handmade Kansa symbolises its purity. The alkaline nature of bronze helps neutralize acidity in food, promoting a balanced pH level.

Reimagined for modern living, we introduced Kansa in 2001 and that has resulted in the reverse migration of an entire village in Odisha, India.
